Important Information:

British Airways offers you the option of setting higher liability limits for baggage checked on our flights. You should fill in the Excess Value Declaration form and pay for the fees incurred, which will increase the carrier's liability limits to the declared value but will not exceed the maximum amount of 2,262 SDRs per passenger.

No excess value declaration is accepted for:

•fragile or perishable items,

•money,

•jewellers, valuables (precious and semiprecious metals and stones),

•electronic equipment (photo, video and computer equipment, storage devices), technical documentation, business papers, securities,

art works,

medication,

•passports and other identity documents,

•musical instruments,

•antiques,

•unique or irreplaceable items.

It is recommended to declare the excess value of such items trough Insurance Company.

The following rules and conditions apply:

You have to register your baggage with declared excess value in British Airways or handling company airport office at least 3 hours before flight schedule departure time.

The baggage with a declared value is accepted for transportation by British Airways in serviceable suitcases/containers (with a firm strong surface) with reliably closed combination locks.

For each Excess Value Declaration a supplementary fee of GBP50,00 will be levied prior to travel. Declaration values must exceed 1.131 SDR (Approximately equivalent to 1.230 euros), but may not exceed 2,262 SDRs per passenger. This amount may only be paid using a valid credit card.

The liability of carrier for baggage where special declaration is made and supplementary fee paid, is higher and caped to the value declared, but will not exceed the maximum amount equivalent to 2,262 SDRs per passenger.

An Excess Value Declaration may only be submitted if your flight is operated by British Airways and your ticket has a British Airways ticket number.

An Excess Value Declaration is valid for one continuous flight journey in one direction, i.e. for either the outward flight or the return flight, including transfer(s) but not including any overnight stop(s) between the individual legs.

If you wish to have coverage for both your outward and return flights, you will need to submit two declarations.

British Airways reserves the right to check the declared items prior to departure.

In the event of a damage claim you will need to provide proof of value (purchase receipt) for every single item.

British Airways is liable for destruction, loss, delay or damage to the declared items up to the declared value if damage is proven.

British Airways is not liable for damage due to:

- defective baggage, improper packing or closure
- carriage in checked baggage of perishable and/or fragile items
- normal wear and tear;

- for damage caused by or connected with security checks performed or ordered by government authorities.

In the event of damages, British Airways will reimburse the costs of repair for the affected items. If the items are irreparable, British Airways will reimburse you for the fair market value of the items up to the amount stated in the Excess Value Declaration. The fair market value shall be the replacement cost of the items minus depreciation for age and normal wear and tear. If the declared value is too low, British Airways is only liable up to this declared value.

The supplementary fee is non-returnable.

The British Airways General Conditions of Carriage apply.

Please keep the completed form with you throughout your entire journey and show it at the check-in desk. In the event of damages, please indicate that you have submitted an Excess Value Declaration.
